

Advance Information: New anthology from Paradise Press

A BOXFUL OF IDEAS

POETRY AND PROSE BY LGBT WRITERS

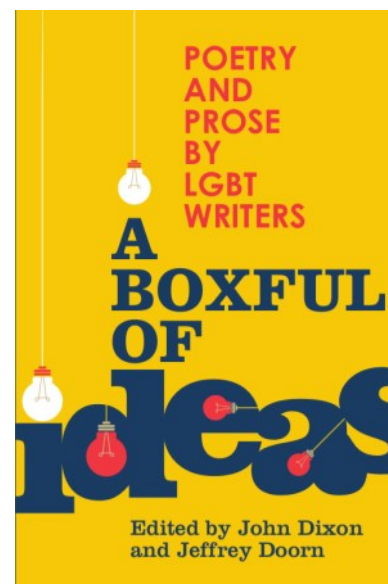

Edited by John Dixon and Jeffrey Doorn

A Boxful of Ideas is the latest and most ambitious anthology from Gay Authors Workshop. More authors. More titles. A greater range of forms: short stories, poems, and essays. A varied line-up and a new take on current and abiding topics.

Paradise Press, founded 1999, is run by a collective within GAW, and has published over forty titles, including full-length novels, poetry, memoirs and history, and six previous anthologies.

“ ... this fascinating LGBT anthology of original poems, short stories, excerpts from novels and non-fiction – nicely titled A Boxful of Ideas. ... As long as we are treated and regarded as separate and outsiders we need to record our own histories, experiences and life-themes in whatever art form. It’s for this reason that I heartily welcome A Boxful of Ideas. ”

—from the Foreword
by Nicholas de Jongh

Authors featured in this anthology include:

- Greg Woods, Emeritus Professor of Gay and Lesbian Studies at Nottingham Trent University
- Jeremy Kingston, former theatre critic of The Times
- Chris Beckett, prize-winning poet and author of Ethiopia Boy
- V. G. Lee, comedian, novelist, winner of the Ultimate Planet Award for established writers
- Donald West, psychiatrist, author of one of the first British books on homosexuality.
