

Gay Authors Workshop

GAW is a co-operative of LGBT creative writers – poets, dramatists, fiction and non-fiction writers. It provides opportunities to meet, read, discuss and develop work in progress. Some advice can be given in preparing books for possible publication – editing, proof-reading, art-work and getting printed.

Monthly meetings are held in different venues: mainly in the London area, but GAW is a national organisation. Our quarterly newsletter keeps members informed of meetings and events, while our bi-annual magazine, Gazebo, provides an in-house outlet for members' short stories, articles and poems. GAW also has close links with Paradise Press, the LGBT publishing house.

Membership is open to all LGBT writers, from beginners to experienced and published authors. The current annual subscription is £8 a year (£5 unwaged).
